

shake a rope in space and notice how it produces no heat because there are no particles in space to produce sound waves