

you could get a mass and heat it and do pressure on it and then when it cools down heat it up with the heat produced at the beginning carried by water in a thermo that's a way to keep those atoms carrying energy through midstate vibration of atoms